With reference to the notification calling for opinion re the introduction of the daily conservancy system by the Municipality I beg to state that the amount of extra cess should not be calculate on the rental value of the building If there are two houses one being a terraced one and the other a thatched one, the former may to pay more cess than the latter, though each house may possess all latrines requiring similar kind of work because one has a terraced building for purposes of removing night soil, the charge ought not to be more He will naturally ask why he should pay more than his neighbour On the other hand if the cess is levied on the number of latrines or still better on the number of inmates in the house, I do not think there will be any cause for dissatisfaction

At present the house owner supervises the work of the scavenger and sees that he cleans it well If the scavenger becomes absent, money may be paid to another and get the night soil removed by him After the introduction of the new system the supervising officer must do the same thing and he must see that night soil is removed by the appointed scavenger or by any one else in that stuff of scavengers Coming to my Bungalow I have two latrines The scavenger cleans the two seats these and sweeps all round the dust pit and removes ash etc and sweeps the small extent of road in the Bungalow On the days of absents I deduct a small portion of his pay to enforce his daily attendance On the pay day he will be asked to thoroughly clean the ~~Cesspools~~ where dirt has accumulated and then his pay will be given All the supervision work will have to be made in future by the tax payers and it remains to be seen how far their work will be found satisfactory In the interest of sanitation the house and the compound should be kept clean and measures introduced to bring about this end will certainly meet with approval

Finally the scavenger might say that he has been appointed to remove only the night soil of only one latrine and it is not in the scope of his work or to wash the latrine and the floor but definitely a duty of the [illegible] Bungalow

scavenger has to do a little more work I know most houses pay annas a month whereas I pay 1½ Rs and even after the introduction of the new system I will have to pay almost the same amount expect therefore that the scavenger should keep the dirty places and the road entrance into the house and flush all the latrines If this is not done I shall be obliged to engage another scavenger which means I have to pay twice over for the work done no In allotting work to scavengers one bungalow may be taken for purposes of calculation to be equal to two houses Say if 60 houses are allotted to a single scavenger for removing the nightsoil, only 30 bungalows may be given to a single persons charge Then there will be no room for scavenger to complain of extra work I thank you sir, for having given me the opportunity to express my views in the matter

Adverting to the departmental Daily Conservancy system proposed to be introduced I beg to state as follows -

1 Even granting that the system will not be a losing concern in the long run and will be a success, especially poor persons will have to pay double taxes (municipal as well as private) just as they have been paying drainage cess and also pay small amounts every now and then for getting the blocked up sewage connection cleaned in as much as all the connections are not inspected every day by the staff

2 If some latrines are not cleaned by the staff owing to negligence or ~~being~~ absence during their rounds the owners will have to approach the authorities and get them cleaned This means delay and causes much nuisance

3 There are pits etc , in many houses still and to levy the cess before suitable latrines fit for daily conservancy are built, is not only unjust and is just like counting eggs before they are hatched

4 Under these circumstances it seems better first to insist the owners to build latrines wherever necessary and in default to get them built departmentally and recover the cost thereof

5 The owners may be made responsible to have their latrines kept clean and, they may be inspected by the stuff at suitable time
